

I read the book Escaping the Giant Wave, written by Peg Kehret. The best words to describe this book are interesting and intense. It stands out from other books because it has more than one natural disaster.

The book is about several kids alone trying to survive multiple catastrophes. Some of the highlights of the story are when their dinner falls off the table during an earthquake and when the hotel catches on fire. What I won't tell you is how the characters escape the fire.

I think you would enjoy this book because there are tons of problems that affect people's lives. Have you read any good books lately?
