

I read the book The Fault in our Stars, written by John Green. The best word to describe this book is emotional. It stands out from other books because the main character, Hazel, is a teenager that has struggles but still tries to find joy in life. Hazel has cancer and falls for a boy that used to have cancer. One of the highlights of the story is when they went to Paris to see the author of Hazel's favorite author. What I won't tell you is someone dies but can't tell you who. I think you would enjoy this book because it's a love story, the best kind. Have you read any good books lately?
