

I read the book Doll House, written by Ann M. Martin. The best word to describe this book is adventurous. It stands out from other books because it's very descriptive. The book is about dolls who come to life and they have adventures together. If they move in front of humans, they become permanently solid. Some of the highlights of the story are when the dolls find their missing aunt who has been missing for many years. What I won't tell you is the ending, because it was very dramatic. I think you would enjoy this book because it's about dolls leaving their doll house and having normal lives. Have you read any good books lately?
