

I read the book The Twits, written by Roald Dahl. The best word to describe this book is funny. It stands out from other books because Roald Dahl makes the book really funny and interesting. The book is about Mr. Twit and Mrs. Twit. They are not nice people. They catch birds and then eat the birds in bird pies that they make. They also have monkeys. The monkeys and birds wanted revenge on the Twits. Some of the highlights of the story are when the monkeys and the birds trick the Twits to think that their house is upside down. What I won't tell you is the ending to the book. I think you would enjoy this book because it's different than American novels. Have you read any good books lately?
