

I read the book Gone, which is the start of a fantastic series written by Michael Grant. The best word to describe this book is thrilling. It stands out from other books because many different characters carry out the story, and they are all in different places experiencing different events in what all the kids call the FAYZ.

In the book, one day all of the people over the age of fifteen disappear, and a huge dome appears over their town. They face many problems like the fact that bullies are taking over and kids are developing these strange powers.

Some of the highlights of the story are when Sam, the protagonist, and his friends try to get away on a boat, but one of the antagonists comes after them and crashes his boat into Sam's. What I won't tell you is who wins the fight at the end.

I think you would enjoy this book because it is suspenseful and just all around a great choice.

Have you read any good books lately?